

Estimation of initial NIV setting for adult and paediatric patient populations

Teddy Man Lai Cheng¹

¹ ResMed Ltd

This paper presents an approach to estimate a pressure setting for initiating Non-invasive Ventilation (NIV) to adult and paediatric patients. It uses the patient's height to determine the predicted body weight, the target tidal volume and the respiratory system compliance, and finally the initial pressure setting. Results for both traditional and lung-protective ventilation strategies are presented.